Buy Your Radio From a Big Responsible Manufacturer
A responsible manufacturer means more than simply a manufacturer who is honest—who does not cheat you. It means a manufacturer who has invested millions of dollars in experience—who has made good—who has won a great name and an enviable reputation and must uphold it.
Stewart-Warner is such a manufacturer. The proof is that today over twelve million people are satisfied users of Stewart-Warner products. Why take a chance in buying your radio from a manufacturer who has not had time to prove worthy of your confidence?
You know that a Stewart-Warner Matched-Unit Radio is a piece of dependable merchandise. The name is a guarantee of that. You know that it is sold only by Blue Ribbon Representatives—the cream of the country's radio retailers—men who guarantee you 100% service and complete satisfaction after this radio is installed in your home.
The day of taking a chance in buying a radio is gone. It is no longer necessary.

I HAVE secured the agency in this territory for this reliable manufacturer. See me and investigate the Stewart-Warner
before buying.

It is edited by Fletcher Davis, formerly editor of the Texas State Department of Agriculture's Monthly News Bulletin, under Commissioner George B. Terrell's administration, and founder and editor of the Market Journal and later of the Market Section of the News Bulletin, under former Commissioner Fred W. Davis's administration. Previous to this experience, he was for four years a Farmers Institute Lecturer and Organizer.

Every month FLETCHER'S FARMING is filled with interesting and timely matter, just such as you find in this issue.

If you are not a subscriber, this is a sample copy sent to you as an invitation to give it a trial. If you are a subscriber it is a request that you call the attention of your neighbors and friends to it and induce them to subscribe for it. In single subscriptions it is $1.00 a year but if you will get three of your neighbors to join you it will be sent to all four for $2.00 for the Club of Four, or it will be sent five years to one address for $2.00.

If neither of these propositions appeal to you look over the club offers herewith and let us have your subscription.

CONSIDER THESE FACTS BEFORE PASSING FINAL JUDGMENT IN HIGHWAY CASES.

To the Editor of the Chronicle.

Your fairness and usual good discrimination in dealing with public questions prompt me to submit for your columns considerations which it seems to me the people should have clearly before them in order to pass a just judgment on the highway controversy; and, in doing so, I am no champion of either side, and have had no communication with the governor or any member of the highway commission, having gotten my facts solely from the press, chiefly from your esteemed paper.

1. The appointment of Frank Lanham, son of one of our most illustrious governors, and of his associates, also prominent men, met with no criticism at the time, not even from the contingent of the press have required prophetic ken to foresee either lack of integrity or competency from these appointees, and we understand that the attorney general has not claimed any want of the former.

2. Stress has been laid on the absence of a bond from the contractor. The state has not lost one cent on account of the absence of a bond, which was not material as might at first blush appear. The work is understood to have been paid for only on approved estimates and after the work was performed and accepted. If there had been a bond, it would have gone merely to the faithful performance of the contract; it would not have covered excess profits based on the invalidity of the contract. Persons often construct costly buildings without bond, protecting themselves by seeing that their payments do not exceed the work done.

3. Consent to the judgment for $600,000 is said to be a confession of wrong. Is that necessarily true? If it be, as Chairman Lanham asserts, that the probable need in the future of resurfacing the roads will likely cost as much or more than the $500,000 or $600,000 recovered for excess profits, who can say it was not good business for the contractor to yield the amount of the judgment in exchange for a cancellation of his admitted obligation to resurface if needed? Who can now say on that basis that the state will be benefited a dollar by the swap-

OUR GOVERNOR.

And the Politicians would crucify her!

MRS. AUGUST KEMPF DEAD.

This entire community was saddened when the news spread over it that Mrs. August Kempf had died at 1 o'clock p. m., Wednesday, November 25, 1925. The public knew she was suffering from an incurable malady but few realized that death was so near until the news came to shock and grieve them.

Mrs. Kempf was born in Castroville 64 years ago. She was Mr. Kempf's second wife and is survived by one own daughter, Mrs. Mary Leske of San Antonio, and four step children, Mrs. Adele Hay, Rudolph, August, Jr., and Joe Kempf, all of San Antonio. Mrs. Kempf is also survived by three brothers, Will, Val and Ferd. Vollmer of San Antonio and one sister, Mrs. M. S. Koch of this place.

A requiem mass was held at her home church here Thursday morning by the pastor and her body taken to San Antonio where she was buried Friday morning, Rev. P. F. Nichel, pastor of St. Ann's Catholic Church officiating.

The sympathy of a vast number of friends all over Southwest Texas goes out to Mr. Kempf in the loss of a devoted and faithful companion. May the departed rest in peace.

4. Some say that the resignation of the highway commissioners thereby admitted wrong. But is that so? There have been well-known instances in which innocent men in high official positions have resigned to avoid embarrassment to the administration or to the party where a storm of opposition had been aroused against them, whether just or unjust. In such circumstances, the honorable man would inevitably resign, though he felt his acts had been blameless and he was clear in his conscience. The spirit of altruism yet lives in many men, rising above the domination of a selfish individualism.

5. The fact of $500,000 or $600,000 of excess profits (aside from the resurfacing, and if there was in fact such excess, is taken as conclusive of such gross incompetency as to amount to constructive fraud. Is this a fair appraisal of the facts as the newspapers have thus far told them? In a contract of $1,700,000, there might be a shift of $500,000, dependent upon weather, and the rise and fall of labor and material. Contractors must take into account these uncertain conditions or often be ruined. We know that the weather was almost marvelously perfect while this highway work was being done, and Chairman Lanham says that labor and material were cheaper than contemplated. The Galveston causeway illustrated the situation. There, the contract made after our entry into the world war, which the contractor was held to have taken into account, was to construct the causeway for $1,645,000; and the cost above that amount, owing to increase in the cost of labor and material and difficulty of transportation, was $652,625.45, which was the loss to the contractor. If the conditions here had been changed, and bad weather, retarding the work and making transportation difficult, with increase in the cost of labor and material, had consumed the $500,000 or $600,000, and put the contractor to a loss, what would then be said? We may pause for a reply.

6. Finally, it is said that the governor, on disclosure of the so-called excess profits, should have sided at once against the highway commissioners. But is that true? Would it have been just to the men of high repute she had appointed to oust them from office, so long as she believed they had done no wrong, and the state would suffer no loss by confirming the contract, in view of the probable need of resurfacing, unless public clamor, though unreasonable, should unmistakably demand the resignation, as it finally did? The government is of the people, and its voice, when pronounced enough, should always be heeded. The governor has heeded it.

Let me add that I could not, upon the facts thus far presented, or unless the proofs were clear and beyond all doubt, bring myself to impute conscious wrong to the distinguished gentlemen of the highway commission, nor to our worthy governor or her husband whose administration, with the aid of a thoughtful legislature, simply sparkles with brilliancy of achievement accomplished in the interest of the people.

I trust you will kindly give the above such prominence in your paper as the importance of the subject seems to suggest.

GIRLS GO TO LA PRYOR. FROM THE HUAJILLO LEAF.

The basket ball girls went to La Pryor, Saturday, to compete against the basket ball team of that town. The girls not only brought home the bacon, but they brought the whole hog.

The girls left at 8 o'clock and were on the road until 2:30 in the afternoon. Dinner was eaten on the Nueces river about eight miles from La Pryor. Due to the great distance and trouble with the truck, the trip was a long and strenuous one.

Regardless of their fatigue the girls beat LaPryor in an easy fought game with a score of 21-9.

Immediately following the game, the truck was homeward bound. Everyone hated to leave La Pryor because the girls were invited to a turkey supper but because of the long distance to travel the girls could not remain over. Supper was eaten at a tourist camp in Uvalde and 10:30 found the players at home, a tired but victorious bunch.

The lineup for Hondo was:
Forwards: Rhoda Mae Taylor, Irene Haass.
Centers: Anne Davis, Vera Whiteley.
Guards: Rose Neuman, Elvira Rothe, (c).

The nutting season is now at hand. This reminds us that the man who plants a nut-bearing tree is no nut!

Add to your own, your friends and our holiday cheer by sending in your own and your friend's subscription to FARMING.

Thanksgiving time is drawing near. And pumpkin-pie days now are here! Then let us all arise and sing. Before the stomach ache they bring!

The only way Jim Ferguson could please some folks in Texas would be to do something so grossly wrong as to leave no palating circumstance. Shame on such evil-minded sinners!

The farm without fruit trees is without one of the prime essentials of frugal and comfortable living. The time for planting an orchard is now at hand.

In thinking of useful and economical gifts for the gift season, don't forget you can remember four friends each with a year's subscription to FARMING for only two dollars.

The time for fall tree planting approaches. Plant trees, plant shrubs, plant anything that will beautify a vacant spot and produce something useful for future generations, even if only a bundle of fagots to warm shivering warts!

Nature, as if to hide her face from the wanton waste of man, has covered his fields with a luxuriant growth of grass in most places. This is nature's effort to prevent the waste of the soil by blowing and washing. Don't waste this covering; help nature conserve her supply of humus.

This is November—the month of garnered harvests and Thanksgiving. If so be that the harvest is scant and the Thanksgiving feast a meager meal, we can be thankful that floods nor storms have devastated our fair land. The thankful, obedient heart is never without cause for thanksgiving and rejoicing.

When Dr. H. J. Watters, editor of the Kansas City Star, died the other day agriculture suffered a severe loss. A profound student of all problems relating to the farm and the farm home, he had the rare ability to impart his vast store of knowledge to others in a pleasing, effective manner. The world is poorer for his passing.

If so be that the valiant spirit of fighting Eob La Follette can look down from the realms celestial and take note of things terrestrial, then indeed there must be degrees of bliss in Paradise. He could but be happy could he see the confidence the people of his state repose in his son as the worthy son of a loved father when they elected him to the place made vacant by his illustrious father's death. No matter how one may have differed from La Follette it would be a calloused heart indeed that would not wish the boy well.

FARMING has been favored by the University of Chicago Press with an attractive book with the above caption, the same being a report of the Proceedings of the Seventh National Country Life Conference held at Columbus, Ohio, in 1924.

We have not yet read this book, although the temptation to do so at the expense of the time necessary to write the matter for filling this page is strong, especially when we note that Dr. Kenyon L. Butterfield's address leads the discussion.

Perhaps there will be some superfluous readers of this rag who will be mean enough to wish we had read it and left these pages blank. But we never waste time trying to please such folks!

The letter of transmittal accompanying the book says of it: "It is an analysis of the rural religious situation and a discussion of ways and means for bettering religious life in the country."

On the assurance of such high purpose we are going to recommend it to the careful perusal of all thoughtful readers of our paper, especially the ministers who do us the honor of reading these lines.

With all due respect, however, to the learned conferees whose discussion makes up the contents of this book, the almost universal mistake of those who approach this subject from their angle is to not only miss the viewpoint of the man and woman of the open country but miss the vital essence of religion itself.

They approach it from the standpoint of the sociologist and think of religion as some kind of nebulous mass movement and the church as a social instrument.

They lose sight of the elemental fact that to the really religious man—in the country and elsewhere—his religion is the soul-felt answer to the question, "Men and brethren, what shall we do to be saved?"

And his church is his organized effort to find the satisfaction of a saving faith.

Between the cold, analytic psychology and sociology of the professor and the spiritual fire behind the religionists, "I know that my Redeemer liveth" there is a far cry. Religion sets its devotees aside from the world as "a peculiar people."

And the trouble with most students from the outside is they study the "peculiarities" and not the divine essence that makes its devotees "peculiar."

We have mingled somewhat with both classes, and we know this is so—sadly so in this day of much study, and little faith!

Any discussion that will lead to a clearer understanding and at the same time a more satisfying faith should be welcomed by all.

Let's all read the book

THE MENACE OF PARTY GOVERNMENT.

Any man who wants to repeal our primary election law will get our wholehearted support—when he proposes, as a substitute, to outlaw all party or group selection of candidates and make the general election a free for all where the selection is both first and final. But no one will get any encouragement out of us in an effort to revert back to the old convention system; or worse still, turn the appointment of our officials over to some autocratic board. Since when is the whole body of a free people not to be trusted?—Fletcher's Farming.

Groups did you say? The free for all election is a paradise for groups. If the last election had been a free-for-all with no party nominees, Felix Robertson would today be governor. The weight of authority is against the one who opposes party nominations. Men who made a life study of our American government are almost a unit in the opinion that parties are necessary. The trouble in Texas is that too many people look upon the party nomination as final election. The people have their real chance in convention nominations. Two political parties or each preaching his doctrine of government and one or more running independent of party affords an ideal group from which the voter may make a selection. We are all of us too firmly bound to the party by the proverbial brass collar. Too many of us thru party are seeking political jobs.—Lockhart Post Register.

Our friend of the Post Register misses the point completely in the foregoing.

For instance, were "group selections" of candidates outlawed, Felix Robertson's race would never have gotten away from the post, seeing he was the "selection" of a group calling themselves kuklux.

His race would have been outlawed before it got started—and some of the decent men, who started out under the kluxer sponsorship but have since quit the outfit in disgust, might have had a running chance.

Of course Whit Davidson's race would have fared the same way, seeing he was a laborer's selection; but his race got him nothing any way.

Parties are not necessary; on the contrary they are normally but a natural grouping of people of common purposes and would function most normally and helpfully under a free-for-all system of election that would enable the largest group of the whole people—the majority, if you please—to select the one nearest representative of their ideas and wishes.

As parties function now, they are simply an effort to substitute the will of the party for the will of the people—and usually succeed.

It is party—organized partizan—selection that brings about the very evils of which our friend complains—interference to the result of the general election (because the democratic nomination is tantamount to election), our subservience to the brass collar, and the scheming of political job hunters.

How these evils can be avoided—how they can be prevented from becoming infinitely worse—under the "convention nomination" system, much less "the people have their real chance," is more than FARMING can quite comprehend.

Whatever "the weight of authority" may be, our experience and observation has been that the closer you can get to the whole people with any political measure or movement the safer it is.

Unless party action is binding on the party members, then party action becomes a joke and the party becomes an impotent instrument.

If binding, as in Texas, it becomes tantamount to election.

What harm then can come to the people—who, save the party leaders on for political jobs, could possibly suffer—by taking the election of our officials out of the hands of the smaller party group and placing it in the hands of the larger group of the whole people?

As it is now, the man who aligns himself with any of the minority parties in Texas virtually disfranchises himself.

And the disfranchising of sovereign freemen does not help promote the growth of a healthy sentiment towards the government or make for its perpetuity.

Party selection of candidates entails enormous economic waste of time, effort and money, benefits only the partizan job-seeker, and weakens rather than strengthens the public service.

One of the chief sources of revenue for the small town printer is his job printing shop. The farmer will find it profitable to both himself and his home town printer to be a more liberal patron of his job shop. A few hand-bills when one has something to sell will cost little and help materially. But most of all, a supply of neatly printed stationery for the family's letter-writing will go a long way towards increasing the family pride in the farm. Ask your home town printer and see if he doesn't agree with us.

THE WOMAN HOPES.

(A Story)

By Fletcher Davis.

It was a bright, crisp Thanksgiving morning.

The milking and feeding were done, the cattle had been turned out on the oat field to graze, the cream had all been separated, placed in the cans, and the utensils washed, scalded, dried and put out to sun and air.

Toby, the milkman, turned to go back to his own home, as he had been doing every morning for almost a year save for the time last spring when he was too sick to work.

"The madam wants to see you at the house first, Toby," Bill Morgan remarked in a casual manner as he noted Toby's preparations to leave.

"But I am in no shape to go in the house where Mrs. Morgan is," protested Toby. "I will take all the perfume of the cowpen into the house with me."

"Nonsense, my boy; come on," And Mr. Morgan led the way around by the front entrance.

Opening the door, he all but pushed Toby into the farm house's best room, and before he realized what was happening a chubby youngster had leaped upon him and Toby found his neck gripped in the cubile embrace of his own little Junior's strong arms.

Mrs. Morgan and Betty Hicks stood smiling at them in front of an open fireplace in which glowed and crackled a fire with that cheerful-known only to the prosperous homes of the open country, homes where the winter supply of firewood is a by-product of the farm and scarcely considered, either as a part of the farm income or the expense of living.

It is around such firesides that the sweetest memories of the farm cling in the minds of those whose ways have led them away from childhood's home on the farm.

"Wh-why, Junior; what are you doing here?—and Mother?" stammered Toby, taken completely aback.

His questions were answered by Mrs. Morgan.

"Just a little Thanksgiving Day surprise is all. You and Billy will find a change of clothes in the bathroom and by the time you have washed and dressed dinner will be ready."

Visions of himself arrayed in a suit of Bill Morgan's clothes flashed through Toby's mind, filling him with greater consternation, and the dumb-like look he turned to his wife broke Betty Hicks's silence.

"Your best suit and a change of underwear is in the bathroom—I brought them over—it's all Mrs. Morgan's scheme—for you and Mr. Morgan's Thanksgiving—hurry, dear, and dress—don't keep dinner waiting—put your clothes in the bag you take the others out of"—and she gave Toby's massive shoulders a pat as she pushed him towards the bathroom of the Morgan home.

Bill Morgan took up so much of his own and Toby's time explaining how his cows had helped him pay for installing a water system in the house and about the place, and what a wonderful time and labor-saving convenience it was that Mrs. Morgan was calling.

"Billy, Billy! the turkey will be cold if you don't quit 'chewing the rag' in there and hurry on in here where you can chew something with more taste to it."

They all laughed at this sally from the dignified lady of the house.

"Faith, and the madam has a bit o' Irish in her too," laughed her husband as he led the way to the dining room.

"Don't worry, Mither; we be ready for the chowins", he called in his Irish mimicry.

"You see, Toby, when the mistress prepares something to eat you can best please her by eating it up in a hurry and pretending you like it whether you do or not; it's flattery ye must give 'em, boy; flattery is their meat and drink; they'd starve in a land of milk and honey without it."

"I'm sure it will take no pretending to like Mrs. Morgan's dinner," replied Toby gallantly as the savory smell of roast turkey caressed his sensitive nostrils.

Seated at the table, and little Junior and all the little Morgan's hushed into silence. Bill Morgan offered grace.

While a rough, gruff man and always busy in the race for material things, Bill Morgan still nursed in his heart that saving spark of faith that acknowledges the creature's indebtedness to the Creator, and his prayer was the untutored outpouring of a grateful, thankful heart to Him who gives us our daily bread.

Its meaning went home to even the youngest child present and as a result of that impression through each of their lives will run a thread of piety and gratefulness to God no matter in what sordid places their lives may be cast, just as a thread of gold may be woven through the fabric of more drab material.

The future of the world, as the perpetuation of religious faith and hope, depends upon just such people, faults though they have.

Bill Morgan's last words were drowned in the loud honking of the horn of an automobile that had pulled up to the front gate unnoticed.

"Toby, that means that you must carve for the ladies, so as to not keep them waiting, while I see who's come," said Mr. Morgan rising from the table.

"Why, its Bill Sharp and that seed man I told you about, Toby," he called from the door. "Mother, set out two more plates and I'll bring them right in; they can talk to Toby about seed-corn after dinner."

And he bustled out to meet his new visitors while Mrs. Morgan spread two extra plates and Toby busied himself, somewhat nervously, over the carving.

One of the charms of country life that has not yet wholly departed in these days of rapid transit and fast living is that the thrifty farmwife is never perturbed by unexpected guests at meal time; the paper-bag livers in town know no such pleasures as were Mrs. Morgan's on this occasion.

If eating with a relish is what pleases a housewife, then Mrs. Morgan should have been happy, for the way that roasted turkey, and all its accessories down to the pumpkin pie, vanished before their busy forks left no doubt as to their appreciation.

And the way they flattered and praised her would have turned the head of any one who, unlike Mrs. Morgan, was unused to the "blarney" of a husband who prided himself in his Irish ancestry.

The meal over, Bill Sharp and his companion made their own and Toby's excuses; they were in a hurry and must see and inspect Toby's corn at once.

Bill Morgan invited himself to a seat in the car with them and the four of them rolled down the road towards Toby's place.

"Well, that's the way it goes," complained Mrs. Morgan. "Feed our men and think we are going to enjoy their company a little while and business takes them away."

"I wonder why they want to see Toby's corn," mused Betty Hicks. "He never told me he was expecting any one."

"Some seed-sharper Mr. Sharp has on the string," said Mrs. Morgan. "Billy thinks they are going to try to get your husband's corn for a song. He says it's valuable corn and he wants Toby to get its worth."

"That's why Billy went along," "Oh, I hope—I hope they do not cheat him out of it—Toby works so hard—"

"That seems to be woman's lot in life—to hope—to serve and to wait," remarked Mrs. Morgan.

And together they began to rattle the dishes as they cleared the table after the Thanksgiving Feast, their minds each with their companions and their thoughts too deep for speech.

The state is more or less agitated over matters pertaining to the Highway Department. So long as politicians—howsoever honest intentioned—have the letting of millions of dollars in road contracts and there are itching palms outside wanting to hand it out, and disappointed contractors ready to howl fraud, just so long will we have more or less agitation. The Highway Department should be abolished root and branch and the management of our roads turned back to the lands of the people of the several counties where it belongs.

A source of farm income that is often neglected is the trapping of furbearing animals in season. Besides the sale of the pelts one is at the same time getting rid of obnoxious pests about the place. Any of our advertisers who deal in furs will be glad to furnish interested parties with information on how to prepare and ship wild animal pelts,

FOOTBALL SEASON CLOSES.

The Huajillo Leaf.
Hondo played her last football game of 1925 on Armistice Day. At the game with Devine the footballers held a meeting and decided to disband.
Hondo had had luck in foot-ball this year, losing three out of the games played. Two of the games were lost in the last minute of the game, and lost them because the other team went against us.

However, what we lost in games
made up by the experience gained by our players. Hondo was tripped this year by the inexperience of our players as we had lost the team last year. However, next year we are looking for a better team to build a team better than the one we had last year.

Hondo's record is as follows:
Hondo (Dist. Champ.) 0
Devine 0
Hondo 67
Devine 6
Hondo piled up 73 points to her opponents 35, lost two games by a narrow margin, not one severe defeat and ran away with one team.

FOOTBALL MEN.

1. Captain Jack Bradley.
He was an offensive and defensive star of the first water player at end or in the backfield. He will be one of the stars of whom we will build our team
next season.

2. Noel Windrow.
Although "Toots" suffered from an injury early in the season, he was a very game and made his presence known to his opponents. Noel will back next year for his best high school athletics.

3. Homer King.
Homer started out as a backfield player but he finally came to himself as a tackle. We are expecting him to come back even stronger next year.

4. Chancey King.
Chancey was our plunging fullback and made many gains on his off-side and off-guard drives. He will be next year and we predict
he will be hard to stop.

5. William Mask.
Mask was the mighty man who was the most of the strain in the right line. Next year "Fritz"
"tower of strength."

6. Owen Moffield.
Owen leaves us this year with a high school career behind his place will be hard to fill
next year.

7. Earl McClagherty.
Earl is another Senior whose place will be hard to fill next year.
Earl will find time for athletics and we feel that he will make a good man.

8. Milton Schweers.
Milton was our center and his accurate passes were always the spot. Some one will show a world of stuff to fill his place next season.

9. Fred Metzger.
Fred was our utility man
and filled any position at any time.
He will be back next season and looking for him to be one of the stars on the squad.

10. Rudolph Rath.
Rath got off to a bad start in the first of the season, but he came to the heights of glory in the last game. He will be a fixture
next year.

11. Otis Schuehle.
Otis was our star halfback although injuries and loss
of equipment kept him out of uniform for most of the practice session he was in every game and always ripped off some pretty gains.

No. 12. Thomas Taylor.
"Tish" was a powerful man at guard. He stopped the enemy rushes at his side of the line and always had a hole open when on the offensive. Thomas will be back next year and will be a powerful man.

Sub:
Doak Love.
"Doak" was one of our strongest backs and should make a good man
next year.

Herman Finger.
Herman was held out at the last of the season by sickness but should be back strong next season.
Milton Mechler.
"Mickie" was a good steady man
and will be a big help to the team
next year.

Walter Meyer.
Walter played his first year this season and he will be a good man
next year.
Earl Walker.
"Red Grange" played his first this year and will be with the first squad
next season.

of equipment kept him out of uni-

THANKFULNESS AND FAITH.
FROM THE HUAJILLO LEAF.
When we celebrate Thanksgiving Day, let us not only give thanks for the many past blessings but also signify faith in the future. No one can have a thankful feeling without faith. As we sit and feast on that day we believe that the things we are thankful for have come to us with divine assistance. That belief is faith! One may pore over many famous, ancient books to find a definition of thankfulness—one that will cover all of the possibilities of human thankfulness for the gifts of God—but the beauties of the countryside and of nature tell more of thankfulness than any person can express in words. The gratitude of growing things is the faith of all creation.

We all see with a mortal mind,
but that which is immortal within us sees far beyond the human vision.
Many people may not appreciate the Day of Thanksgiving as it really is, and these people are said to have a selfish faith—that of gain, when the harvest is in. But whatever we do, whatever we say or think; whic-ever life we lead—be it on stormy seas, serving the Lord in a convent, trudging about among the beauties of nature, or attempting to scorn belief as the result of an embittered life—we cannot escape faith.
When we sleep we express faith in God, knowing that we will be protected by Him through the night.
We know that while we sleep we are utterly unable to protect ourselves from danger, yet we are not afraid to fall asleep.

To one and all death must sometime come. We do not know when it will strike but we do not fear it and we live on day after day with peaceful minds.
The early colonists, who celebrated the first Thanksgiving Day, planted the seeds of their first harvest in a spirit of faith. Had they not done things in faith they would not have been thankful for their success.
Nothing was gained without labor.
They came to the wilderness with courage to dare and to do. Their success was the prize of courage and daring.

It was in recognition and exaltation following faith's fruits that a day of thanksgiving was established.
This day does not merely mark a specific festival; it marks a continuity of life and all that is in or of it.

EUGENE BOHL SHOT WHILE HUNTING DEER.

While hunting deer on the Migue at the Bowman ranch, with Josh Bowman and Leo Schmidt, on Wednesday evening of last week, just after The News had been mailed out, Eugene Bohl, Jr., was shot in the right leg by a ball from a 30-30 Winchester, in the hands of Leo Schmidt, who was one of the party. The boys had parted and were to meet at a fence near night. It seems that Gene and Josh got back, where they expected to meet Leo, and had lain down on the grass, or was half sitting up, when Leo came up and in the dusk mistook them for deer, shooting twice, the first ball missing Bowman's neck but a little and the next striking Bohl in the right leg the ball lodging under the knee cap. Bohl was rushed to town, given first aid, and then to Santa Rosa hospital where the ball was extracted, and while suffering very much from the wound, the surgeons hope to save his leg, tho there are grave fears the knee will be stiff. Gene is he is prone to hard luck. At the last year he lay two months in bed with fever, a part of the time with death, and this wound.

ident and hopes to see him home soon. Mr. and Mrs. Bohl and Miss Mary have been spending some time in the city with him.

NATALIA HOTEL TO BE IMPROVED AND GROUNDS BEAUTIFIED.

A force of painters and paper-hangers are at work beautifying the inside of the Natalia Hotel; and a landscape artist has a force of men at work on the grounds, where ornamental and fruit trees will be planted and the whole thing made a beautiful spot. It is thought the hotel will be used for accommodating homeseekers who may come here later prospecting. This we understand was the original idea of the hotel.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Mrs. Bettie Merriwether.

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father in His divine wisdom to take our friend and co-worker, Mrs. Bettie Merriwether, to dwell with Him and,

Whereas, by her death we are brought face to face with the fact that in the midst of life we are in death, and,

Whereas, our hearts go out in sympathy to the bereaved family, and,

Therefore, be it Resolved, by the Philathea class of the Methodist Church of Hondo, that we express to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy in this, their hour of sorrow, and assure them that we shall miss her faithfulness to the Philathea class, and that we shall ever consider it a privilege to have been associated with her during her life here in Hondo. We know that our loss is Heaven's gain. And be it further,

Resolved, that a copy of this paper be sent to the bereaved family, that it be placed in our minutes, and that a copy be sent to the Anvil Herald for publication.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Willie R. Schuehle died unexpectedly at an early hour last Tuesday morning and was found dead in its little bed shortly after sunrise by its mother. The cause of the child's death is supposed to have been cramps. Its burial took place Tuesday afternoon from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Muennink, the great grandparents of the child, in Hondo. The service was conducted by Rev. C. P. Hasskarl of the Quhi Lutheran church. Several very appropriate hymns were sung at the house and again at the grave.

The funeral was attended by a large number of relatives and friends of the bereaved couple. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. The child which passed away and was thus laid to rest in the Hondo cemetery was in life Willie Ray Schuehle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. R. Schuehle of Sturm Hill. This child was born April 18th, 1925; received the sacrament of holy baptism June 14th and died November 24th, attaining the age of 7 months and 5 days. May it rest in peace. The sympathy of the Anvil Herald is extended to the bereaved parents and relatives.

DOES YOUR BACK ACHE?

Bad Backs Bring Suffering to Many Hondo Folks.

Is that dull, constant backache making you old and miserable? Does seem you just can't keep going? Do you suffer headaches, dizzy spells and urinary disorders; feel weak, tired and worn-out? Then look to your kidneys. Delay may mean serious kidney sickness! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's are recommended by Hondo folks.

O. H. Getter, retired painter, Hondo, says: "I was taken with a terrible backache and when I stooped, it was an effort for me to straighten. Nights I had to get up frequently to pass the kidney secretions, which were scanty, and scalding. I felt tired and worn out all the time and had no ambition. After taking two boxes of Doan's Pills, my back was strong and my kidneys acted regularly."

GILDED SILENCE.

"I couldn't get out of marrying her," Henpeck exclaimed. "When she proposed she said: 'Will you marry me? Have you any objection?' You see, no matter whether I said 'yes' or 'no' she had me."

"Why didn't you just keep silent, then?" inquired his friend.

"That's what I did, and she said: 'Silence gives consent' and that ended it."

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank all those who so kindly came to our assistance in our bereavement at the death of our dear baby. We especially wish to thank the Hondo choir for the Song Services. We are also grateful for the many expressions of sympathy and the beautiful floral offerings.
